FROM

THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES

TRANSMITTING

A CONVENTION BETWEEN THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA AND PAKISTAN
FOR THE AVOIDANCE OF DOUBLE TAXATION AND THE PREVENTION OF FISCAL EVASION WITH RESPECT TO TAXES ON INCOME,
SIGNED AT WASHINGTON ON JULY 1, 1957

LETTER OF SUBMITTAL

DEPARTMENT OF STATE,
Washington, July 8, 1957.

The PRESIDENT,
The White House:

The undersigned, the Secretary of State, has the honor to submit to the President, with a view to its transmission to the Senate to receive the advice and consent of that body to ratification, if the President approve thereof, a convention between the United States of America and Pakistan for the avoidance of double taxation and the prevention of fiscal evasion with respect to taxes on income, signed at Washington on July 1, 1957.

The convention was formulated as a result of technical discussions between representatives of this Government and representatives of the Pakistan Government, in the course of which an effort was made to determine the bases upon which agreement might be reached for the purpose of avoiding double taxation, and establishing certain procedures for mutual administrative assistance, in regard to income taxation. Elimination of such double taxation is an important step toward removing one of the impediments to international trade and investment.

The convention with Pakistan follows in general the pattern of income-tax conventions presently in force between the United States and a number of foreign countries, namely, Australia, Belgium, Canada, Denmark, Finland, France, the Federal Republic of Germany, Greece, Honduras, Ireland, Italy, Japan, the Netherlands, New Zealand, Norway, Sweden, Switzerland, the Union of South Africa, and the United Kingdom.

As in the cases of similar conventions, the one with Pakistan is designed to eliminate obstacles to the international flow of trade and investment. It contains provisions relating to business income, investment income, personal service (including professional) income, official salaries, pensions and annuities, remuneration received by teachers, remittances or grants to students and apprentices, and interest received by the State Bank of Pakistan and the Federal Reserve banks of the United States from sources in the other country. The convention also contains, as is customary, provisions regarding administrative procedures, including exchange of information, for giving effect to the convention.

The convention contains certain provisions, unlike those in income-tax conventions with other countries, under which the United State would take an important step toward avoiding nullification of the efforts of a foreign country to encourage industrial development through its tax law. Pakistan tax law, in order to attract capital and encourage investment for the development of Pakistan's economy and natural resources, offers an incentive for establishment of approved new enterprises. Pakistan accords certain tax exemptions as to profits of such enterprises and also as to dividends paid out of such profits. More specifically, under the income-tax law of Pakistan a business qualifying as a new enterprise may obtain tax exemption for a 5-year period on profits up to 5 percent of invested capital, and dividends paid from such profits may be tax exempt. At present an American corporation qualifying for such treatment under Pakistan law may find that United States taxes will be increased and thus offset the effects of the Pakistan tax law. The concession by Pakistan, therefore, is no special attraction to the United States investor. Under article XV (1) of the proposed convention this situation would be remedied within limits and on certain conditions by treating, as though paid for foreign-tax-credit purposes, the amount of income tax and supertax by which the American taxpayer's Pakistan tax is reduced.

It is understood that the Department of the Treasury is prepared to make such further explanations as may be found desirable regarding the technical aspects and application of the proposed convention.

The convention applies, so far as United States taxes are concerned, only to the Federal income taxes, including surtaxes. It does not apply to the imposition or collection of taxes by the several States, the District of Columbia, or the Territories or possessions of the United States, although it contains a broad national-treatment provision similar to a provision customarily found in treaties of friendship, commerce, and navigation. In Pakistan the convention would be applicable to the income tax, super-tax, and business-profits tax.

It is believed that the convention with Pakistan, if brought into force, would be beneficial to both countries and to their respective citizens and enterprises. It has the approval of the Department of State and the Department of the Treasury.

Article XIX provides for ratification and for exchange of instruments of ratification. It prescribes that, upon such exchange, the convention shall have effect in the United States for taxable years beginning on or after January 1 of the year in which the exchange takes place and shall have effect in Pakistan for "previous years" or "chargeable accounting periods," as defined in Pakistan law, beginning on or after January 1 of the year in which the exchange takes place.

It is provided in Article XX that the convention shall continue in effect indefinitely, but may be terminated at the end of a period of 3 years or thereafter by the giving of a notice by one of the parties to the other party on or before June 30 of any year, in which event the convention would cease to be effective (a) in the United States, for the taxable years beginning on or after January 1 next following the notice of termination, and (b) in Pakistan, in respect of the "previous years" or the "chargeable accounting periods," as defined in Pakistan law, beginning on or after January 1 next following the notice of termination.

Respectfully submitted,

JOHN FOSTER DULLES.

(b) as affecting any provisions of the law of Pakistan regarding the imposition of tax on a nonresident or the grant of rebate of tax to companies fulfilling specified requirements regarding the declaration and payment of dividends, unless those requirements are fulfilled.

ARTICLE XVIII

(1) The present Convention may be extended, either in its entirety or with modifications, to any territory for whose international relations either of the contracting States is responsible and which imposes taxes substantially similar in character to those which are the subject of the present Convention and any such extension shall take effect from such date and subject to such modification and conditions (including conditions as to termination) as may be specified and agreed between the contracting States in notes to be exchanged for this purpose.

(2) The termination in respect of Pakistan or the United States of the present Convention under Article XX shall, unless otherwise expressly agreed by both contracting States, terminate the application of the present Convention to any territory to which the Convention has been extended under this Article.

(For the Government of the Republic of Pakistan).

[*Editor's Note: Although the protocol of exchange does not recite acceptance by Pakistan of the reservation subject to which the United States ratified the convention, Pakistani acceptance of the reservation is evidenced in two unpublished documents, as follows: (1) a note, dated October 17, 1958, from the Pakistan Ministry of Foreign Affairs and Commonwealth Relations to the United States Embassy in Karachi, in which it is stated that “ the Government of Pakistan  [has] no objection to the provision of the reservation in the convention ”; (2) the Pakistani instrument of ratification, dated May 2, 1959, in which It is stated that. "The Government of the Republic of Pakistan having considered the Convention aforesaid, hereby confirm and ratify the same and undertake to perform and carry out all the stipulations therein contained subject to the reservation that the second sentence of paragraph one of Article XV has not been ratified and is excepted from the operation of the Convention with the same effect as though that sentence were deleted.”]
